Cleo Of 'The People's Choice'

as we see it

In a recent speech, Chairman George C. McConnaughey of the Federal Communications Commission criticized television programming material which is "more appropriate for the barroom or midway," and such advertising abuses as spurious product offers, overlong commercials and too many commercials.

He emphasized that the FCC has no power of censorship over broadcast programs, and indicated that "forces other than government" must seek improvement in all areas of broadcasting.

"The best guidance and discipline is self-guidance and self-discipline," he said. "It is my sincere hope that the industry will be able to solve its own program problems and maintain high standards."

To which we can only add, "Amen."

The industry does have the machinery for policing itself. The National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters has a Code covering program and advertising practices. All networks and most stations have agreed to abide by the Code and have been awarded a seal saying that they do obey its provisions.

If a station violates the Code, the seal may be withdrawn. This has not yet happened, even though it is evident that there have been many, many violations, not only of its spirit, but of actual provisions it contains.

Since the only alternative to self-regulation by the television industry would be some form of superimposed government or public censorship, and since censorship is repugnant to all of us, it would behoove the industry representatives who administer the Code to make it a truly workable and effective instrument.

The best means of doing that is to enforce it.

NEW YORK Bob Stahl reports:

CBS seems to be going in for spectaculars in a big way next season. The network is planning to establish two stock companies--one for musicals, one for dramatic shows--around which to build a weekly 90-minute program . . . And Hollywood singing star JANE POWELL ready to sign for a series of such spectaculars.

NBC, expanding its color schedule, will tint a number of Perry Como Shows, and also one or more of Playwrights '56, Kraft Theater, the Goodyear-Alcoa hour and Robert Montgomery Presents.

ABC launches a weekday Afternoon Film Festival Monday, Jan. 16, with 100 British movies not yet seen on TV, including SIR LAURENCE OLIVIER's "Hamlet." The new series will occupy the 3-to-5 P.M. (EST) period, directly preceding Mickey Mouse Club.

The DORSEY BROTHERS' Stage Show, frequently rumored to be getting the ax, apparently is with us for the season. Guest stars are now being booked through March; EILEEN BARTON, for example, is set for Mar. 17.

NBC dropped its option on the daytime World of Mr. Sweeney, which means there is little chance of its returning . . . ALEX SEGAL, back in New York after a Hollywood movie chore, will direct his first show for Producers' Showcase Mar. 5.

NBC mulling plans for an hour-long jazz program for late Saturday afternoons. To be telecast live from New York, it would spotlight various guest jazz musicians and conductors . . . ESTHER WILLIAMS, MILTON BERLE's guest earlier in the season, may star in her own show in the BERLE-MARTHA RAYE Tuesday night spot.

Children's Corner, Pittsburgh-originated show that had a try-out on NBC, has won its full network spurs and goes regularly at 10 A.M.(EST) Monday through Friday . . . IMOGENE COCA, already scheduled for a MAX LIEBMAN spectacular in February, may make her TV dramatic debut on U. S. Steel Hour. She'd hoped to do the 90-minute "Happy Birthday," but the time couldn't be cleared, so she's looking for an hour-long property.

MERRY ANDERS is leaving the JANIS PAIGE show, It's Always Jan, to have a baby and PAT BRIGHT broke her kneecap and must be confined to sit-down roles. So a wag suggested retitling the program, "It's Only Jan."

ARLENE FRANCIS and her Home crew will be in Chicago Jan. 9-13 for the annual Merchandise Mart . . . We may have spectaculars right through next summer. A cosmetics firm is seeking 90-minute shows to sponsor June through August.

TV Giveaway Shows Lure Viewers With Bigger And Bigger Jackpots

The dazzling success of The $64,000 Question has caught television up in a mad whirlpool of giveaways.

Sponsors, networks, producers have been frantically casting about for ways to shower down fortunes and capture the Nation's viewers.

Existing programs, dreaming of higher ratings, are boosting their prizes. Where all this will lead is anybody's guess; but, meanwhile, contestants have a chance to win more loot than ever before in TV's history.

At least one contestant has snared the $100,000 top prize on The Big Surprise. Another walked away with $50,000. The 21 motorists who write the best safety slogans in a contest conducted by Dodge Motors are competing on The Lawrence Welk Show, with seven of them winning a new car each year for the rest of their lives.

Truth or Consequences, to kick off its new season in September, offered $100,000 in cold cash to a 19-year-old contestant if she could break a hypnotic spell induced by hypnotist Arthur Allen. She failed, but another T or C contestant recently won $9000 for correctly identifying a "picture puzzle." Stop the Music this year introduced a new super jackpot with a "theme," permitting contestants to win a two-week uranium prospecting tour (the show billed it as a "$1,000,000 hunt") or a furnished four-room bungalow or a trip to Hollywood with screen test guaranteed—each in addition to the usual prizes worth some $20,000.

Viewers of The Big Payoff took to guessing how many sequins there were on a model's bathing suit. continued with the prize-winner getting a mink coat, a trip to Europe for two, a convertible car and a diamond ring.

Then there's Edgar Bergen's Do You Trust Your Wife?, which debuts on CBS Tuesday. Contestants on this one can win up to $100,000 in the form of a weekly income of $100 for 20 years.

Even fairly low-budgeted shows are off on a new jackpot kick. Name That Tune this season added $25,000 for winners who answer a series of questions over a five-week span. Love Story, successor to Welcome Travelers, offers a trip for two to Paris, a car and $500. A husband-wife team recently cracked the "bonus stunt" on Beat the Clock for $3100. Viewers of Chance of a Lifetime can win $500 each week by picking the winner of the two competing acts on the show. Contestants on Feather Your Nest get a crack at winning a completely furnished house.

Groucho Marx perhaps best summed up the headlong trend to bigger and better jackpots when he announced recently on his You Bet Your Life that he won't take a back seat to any giveaway show. Groucho boosted the prize for any contestant mentioning the "secret word" from $100 to $101 (which is split at $50.50 each for the lucky contestant and his partner).

Networks and sponsors, despite these telltale signs, insist they are not trying to "buy" an audience for their shows at the expense of more creative and more literate programming. But most sponsors nonetheless are beating at the doors of their ad agencies and networks to "find me a show like $64,000 Question." At least 100 new giveaway programs have been submitted, with prizes ranging from another $100,000 in cash, to a $200 per month annuity for the rest of the winner's life, to a producing oil gusher in Texas.

Emcee Jan Murray, Evelyn Patrick

But there already are signs that the stampede may be checked.

Remembering how the giveaway craze knocked several fine radio shows off the air, network executives are leery about giving jackpot programs a chance to crowd creative shows off TV. "This whole idea of buying an audience is a sickness," one network vice president averred. "I don't think TV will be discharging its obligation if it pursues that course. But I also don't believe there will be many more new giveaway shows. Actually, I doubt whether there's room for even one successful giveaway program on each of the three networks."

The failure of The Big Surprise to create the same excitement and Page 1 publicity that greets The $64,000 Question has also alerted the networks to the possibility that the mere size of the jackpot won't insure a good rating. When New York police sergeant Barney Arluck tried (and failed) to win that $100,000 on Surprise, the show drew a rating of only 15.3, compared to the 50's and 60's gained consistently by Question.

Networks are convinced that even display Dollar a Second's dollars.

if a giveaway show were as good as The $64,000 Question, it still could not catch on so fast and so mightily. The reason is simply that $64,000 Question got there first, according to ABC program chief Robert M. Weitman. "If you have one winning show of a certain type, how much audience excitement can you expect to generate with a second one?" Weitman asked. "As far as the audience is concerned, it's like being served pheasant-under-glass after a big steak dinner."

ABC has had 60 or more giveaway shows submitted, Weitman said. But the big question is, can any capture the public imagination? One was suggested by Eddie Cantor. Titled Security for Life, it's the one that would offer a jackpot winner the $200 a month annuity for as long as he lives.

Jan Murray, emcee of Dollar a Second, has suggested a new show to ABC in which a contestant reaching the summit would be asked to select one of five large boxes on the stage. Four boxes would contain expensive prizes, such as a deed to a home, but the fifth would contain $100,000 in solid U.S. currency.

"But we can't just say that if one show gives away $100,000, then we can attract a bigger audience by giving away $200,000," Weitman said. Louis G. Cowan, who has probably done more to create and popularize giveaway shows than any other producer with Stop the Music, $64,000 Question and others, also feels the size of a show's jackpot award is secondary to its entertainment qualities.

Asked whether he thought the new emphasis on giveaways and bigger jackpots is good for TV, Cowan answered: "The public itself judges pretty quickly what it wants. If a show is in bad taste or is poorly conceived, the public will not watch it and such shows will die. But if a show is well-conceived and constructed, the public will watch it. Then such a show belongs."

It Shouldn't Happen To A Dog

TV Scripts — And Press Agents — Provide Some Strange Jobs For Canine Actors

The star on TV GUIDE's cover this week is Cleo, a basset hound, which "talks" every week on the Jackie Cooper show, The People's Choice. It is a noteworthy addition to the growing ranks of TV dogdom, that include a St. Bernard which drinks; a collie which chaperones small boys; a police dog which fights Indians and outlaws; another German shepherd which foils bank robbers; a sheep dog which, naturally enough, rounds up sheep; a third police dog which chews villains, and a second basset, in strictly for laughs.

What these dogs can do is a caution. Cleo, as noted, is given to talking back to its master, its most acid comments being reserved for the female in Cooper's life, a part played by vivacious Pat Breslin.

As for Lassie, the collie, it thinks nothing of leaping through ersatz glass windows or lunging happily into an arm-tearing "fight" with a well-gloved villain. Rin Tin Tin, perhaps most active of the canine set, regularly rescues the U.S. Cavalry, leaping from cliffs, fighting cougars or even eagles in the process.

And then there's Bullet, a police dog, which responds to Roy Rogers'

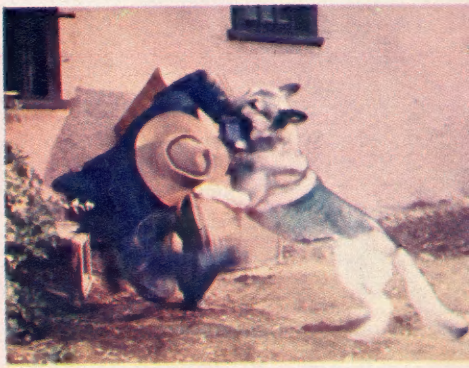
◀ 'It's not so bad.' Lassie comforts Pokey about pup's television role.

"Go git him!" and invariably winds up with the villain in its teeth.

The success of these three stalwarts, plus the appeal of Topper's sophisticated martini-nipping St. Bernard, Neal, has brought other dogs than Cleo into TV. Pokey, a basset comic, provides laughs on the Lassie show. Chinook, an all-white German shepherd, catches bank robbers while holding down half the title role in "Corky and White Shadow," starting soon on Mickey Mouse Club. Another new Disney entry is Scamp, a sheep dog, which has the title role all to himself in Mouse Club's "Border Collie."

Like other stars, TV's dogs are frequently called on to sit for outlandish publicity pictures. With admirable stoicism, they pose signing contracts, playing chess, reading scripts, sitting in a director's chair, running cameras, pushing carriages. It shouldn't happen to a—. But on second thought, considering the money they make, people should have it so good!

Making sure. Cleo packs most important possession for a trip with Jackie Cooper.



It's the end of the trail for an outlaw as Rin Tin Tin catches up with him. Smart as a whip, Rinty always does.

Horse Hero. Gene Autry's Champion, now starring in his own TV series, helps foil stage robbers in the Adventures of Champion episode on CBS Friday.

◀ Spectacular. Skating star Barbara Ann Scott joins Peggy Lee, others in 'Happy New Year' show on NBC Sunday.

Watch Out! Tommy Cook is the one likely to be burned as he offers a light to Louise DeCarlo (sister of Yvonne) on Ford Theater's 'A Set of Values,' NBC, Thursday.

Grateful Girl. Shelley Fabares (Nanette Fabray's niece) thanks Richard Webb for aiding her father in Captain Midnight instalment on CBS today (Saturday).

Tournament Of Roses. Annual festival in Pasadena, Cal., preceding Rose Bowl football game, will be seen this year on two networks—NBC and ABC, Monday.

Drama Of Treason. Colonel Livingston (John Larch) orders firing at British ship in 'Benedict Arnold's Plot Against West Point' on CBS' You Are There, Sunday.

Nine-To-Five? Not For Her!

Joanne Jordan Works Only 11 Hours A Week, Makes $50,000 A Year

Last spring the officials of a Hollywood school attended by the children of several motion picture actresses were up against the problem of which famous mama to name judge of its May Day parade. As it turned out, the student body didn't know who most of the movie stars were. They selected a really famous mama, one who does commercials on TV.

The judge was Joanne Jordan, the attractive brunette who paints her palm with lipstick on This Is Your Life. Not only the red stuff has found its way across Joanne's palm since she turned model and actress six years ago. There's been plenty of the green stuff, too. As one of TV's top spielers, she earned $50,000 last year.

Joanne, mother of three, had had no experience in show business when she hung up her boots and apron, said goodbye to 3000 steers, and left her husband's ranch at Riverside, Cal. to make the rounds of the Hollywood model agencies.

"I chose modeling," she says, "because I didn't want to work steadily from nine to five."

Agency after agency objected that she lacked the hollow cheeks and "stylish" figure so dear to the fashion photographer's heart, until she was sent on a job for which various thin gals had been rejected. It paid $40 a day for over two months, enabling her to hang on until she could convince KTLA-TV, Los Angeles, she could be trusted to hold up a can of tuna between the reels of an old Sunday night movie.

Since then, she's had a variety of TV chores. On one Burns and Allen show, she played a part and did the commercial, too. She's acted on Four Star Playhouse, City Detective and Racket Squad. Magazine illustrators seek her services, but she turns them down in favor of her TV commitments, which isn't surprising. They total about 11 hours a week of working time, and that's not nine to five!

O'Neil

Francis

Chicago Dateline

Danny O'Neil, who handed in his notice at WBKB, is planning a network show from New York. Danny, who tired of waiting for Chicago to become a network center, plans to commute to New York and keep his home in Oak Park, where he and his wife recently finished a major redecorating job.

Cleo, the latest addition to TV dogdom (and this week's cover personality), will make a one-day personal appearance in Chicago Jan. 19. The basset hound who gets in its licks with acid comments on People's Choice will be accompanied by co-stars Jackie Cooper and Patricia Breslin.

Skating star Barbara Ann Scott needs an airline commuter ticket. Booked as one of the headliners of the Happy New Year Show over NBC, she has been training at a rink on the North Side of Chicago and flying back and forth to New York for rehearsals. Word from hubby Tom King is that Barb will do some skating during the year but would like to settle down to being a housewife and mother.

Peggy Murdock has attracted a major recording firm as a result of her singing commercials on Steve Allen's Tonight. Speaking of records, several major labels are dickering with Phil and Dale Lind.

Still tanned from their recent African safari, Zooparaders Marlin Perkins and Jim Hurlbut head for the sunshine country again. They journey to Florida for shows from the Rare Bird Farm near Miami Jan. 1 and from the Serpentarium, also near Miami, Jan. 8.

Chicago will be the first stop for Arlene Francis after two weeks in Tokyo spent filming family life, the story of the New Year and the Kabuki Theater. Home originates in Chicago for a week beginning Jan. 9.

Smith

Erwin

Not Forgotten

I sorely miss the Paul Dixon Show and Kate Smith Hour. Both were wonderful daytime entertainment and both were 100 percent better than what is on now in their former time slots. If Dixon is not to return, I'd suggest moving Stu Erwin to 2 P.M. for the purpose of presenting in the middle of the afternoon a show approximating his delivery.—William Olson, Chicago.

Chooses 'People's Choice'

Wish to disagree with review of The People's Choice. We think it's one of the most amusing comedy shows this fall. Even the children enjoy this one. We hope it stays on the air a long time.—Mrs. R. Sternberg, Glenview, Ill.

Letters From Godfrey

Arthur Godfrey isn't dead yet in the hearts of the people who have listened to him and watched him year after year. He has become like one of our family with his faults and his virtues. I have written to him and praised his programs and I have written and told him off. Each time I've received a letter of thanks. The people he is supposed to have hurt he has made famous. Maybe that's why he has done things just as he has—because he knew they'd get publicity.—Mrs. R. D., Chicago.

Pat On The Back

Should like to say thanks for the nice letter about They Stand Accused you published. It cheered me up. I also wish to thank you for your splendid coverage of everything on TV. TV GUIDE is always interesting, entertaining and worthwhile. I should call it a compact compendium of all the important news about TV, the stars and the behind-the-scenes happenings.—Judge Charles Ralph Johnston, Chicago.

TV Changes Requested

Could a change be made to have Les Paul and Mary Ford on for a half hour? Why don't you take a half hour off Lounsbury; I get pretty tired of learning to dance.—W. J., McHenry, Ill.

Fading Faye

Would you please tell Marty Faye that when he advertises something not to yell so much and not to dramatize it so much. I always turn the set down when he talks.—Linda Djuric, Chicago.

Jokes Lack Zip

It would be great if Herb Shriner took a vacation 52 weeks each year and had Sam Levenson substitute for him. Herb's jokes are so dry they don't rate a cracked smile.—Mrs. Frank Rankut, Plymouth, Ind.

Youle's No Fool When It Comes To Weather

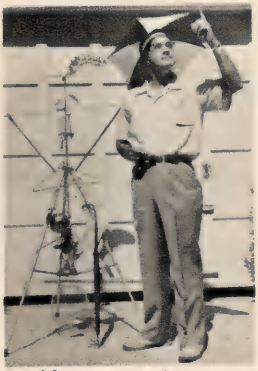
The real Youle. Serious study brings results.

One November evening, Clint Youle, most famous of Chicago's TV weather reporters, consulted his notes and predicted a cold snap. The following morning, his viewers dutifully wrapped themselves in coats, donned boots, mittens and caps, and stepped from their homes into bright, warm sunshine. During the next eight hours, in fact, the thermometer climbed to an all-time high for the date.

Then there was the time Clint forecast that snow, then falling over Joliet, would reach Chicago by midnight. What he didn't know was that at the time of his telecast, 10 P.M., the white stuff was already settling on the Windy City. Phone calls from needling Chicagoans jammed the station's switchboard.

Clint's job is tough because Chicago lies on a line where warm air from the South and cold air from the North fight it out. Also, within 200 miles of Chicago, five of the seven major storm tracks are situated. Most of the time, Clint's predictions are accurate. If you'd care to check, watch him on Adults Only at 6 P.M. and on his own show at 10 P.M. Monday through Friday over Ch. 5. He also supplies weather information for viewers of John Cameron Swayze's newscasts at 6:45 P.M.

Viewers who have been caught with their bumbershoots down as a result of a Youle edict accuse him of getting his information in a variety of ways. Some of them are pictured here.



Highly secret rain-sunometer gets workout.

If Youle flips coin, viewers flip lids, dials.

This usually results in balled-up weather.

(7) REMEMBER—Norman Ross

Tonight Norm highlights the year 1940, when war virtually covered the world, particularly Europe. Through the use of slide, film clips and other references, Norm details the successful completion of Russia's attack on Finland, Germany's march through Belgium, and King Leopold's surrender. Hitler moves into the picture when he moved across France, and captured Paris. An ironic touch was the fact that the Paris surrender papers were signed in the same railroad car in which the same type of papers were signed during World War I. Norm also shows the start of the blitz in England, with dramatic pictures depicting how almost all of London was levelled with the exception of the great St. Paul Cathedral. The year 1940 finished out with the United States entering the growing war picture by holding its first peacetime draft.

No place like home: Herb Shriner and wife, Pixie happily locate Indiana on the globe.

He Wants To Go Back

Shriner Yearns For The Days Of Jokes And The Harmonica

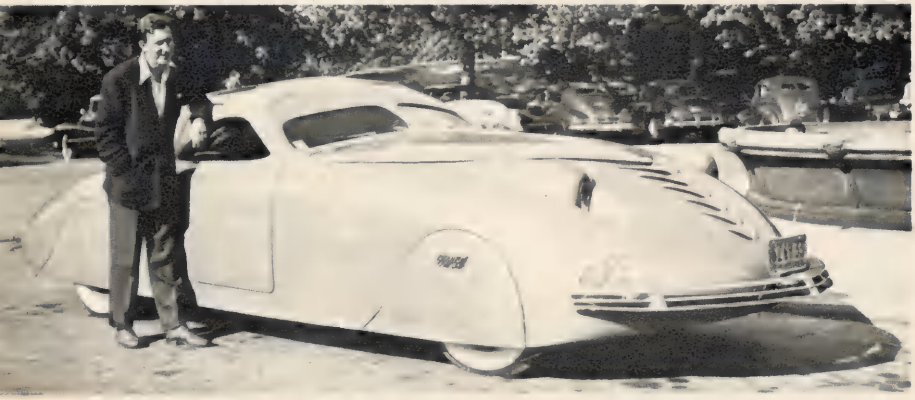
Offstage, few comedians appear to enjoy their work. Back in the wings, the clown is often a somber fellow, a gloomy character who will tell you he'd much rather play Hamlet.

Herb Shriner's just the opposite. His complaint is that he doesn't get enough chance to be funny—at least, not on his highly successful TV show, CBS' Two for the Money.

"I like monologin'," he says. "I been monologin' 20 years now, ever since I come out of Indiana all dressed up with garters on my shirtsleeves and ham fat on my hair. So what do I do on Two for the Money? I pass it out, that's what I do. Sometimes I think I'm just warmin' a chair."

Other times when he's in a less melancholy mood, Herb continued

Harmonica Has Been 'A Father' To Him



Shriner at play: he proudly inspects his Indiana-built Cord, 'The Phantom Corsair.'

admits the show has its good points. One of these is its easygoing, Indiana-style format, which enables Herb to crack an occasional joke. And then, too, there are the short hours—and high pay—which permit Herb to pursue his offstage activities.

At present, these activities appear to be centered about his campaign to promote his favorite musical instrument, the harmonica. To achieve this end, Herb has marketed "Herb Shriner's Hoosier Boy Harmonica" and is sponsoring an all-harmonica orchestra with which he has just cut a Columbia Records album.

"The harmonica," says Herb, "has been a father to me."

Herb is now a 6-foot-2, 36-year-old city slicker with store-bought suits; a wife named Pixie; three children (daughter Indy, 3½, and twins Kin and Wil, 1½), and some jazzy sports cars. But he was a country rube of 14 when he first started playing the harmonica in and about the city of Fort Wayne, Ind. (He's been drawling Indiana's praises ever since, though his actual birthplace was Toledo, Ohio.) Herb played with the high school harmonica band. Later he played solo harmonica on the Fort Wayne radio station and in small towns around the country.

"Mr. Webster defines the harmonica as a small wind instrument played by the mouth in which the tones are produced by free metallic reeds," says Herb. "Now that doesn't sound like much when you put it like that. I guess you wouldn't think a man could build his whole career on a few metallic reeds. But that's what happened to me."

Herb started his "monologin'" shortly after he went out in the world as a professional harmonica player. He was playing the "low act" (bottom billing in a seven-a-day grind vaudeville show) in Detroit one night when his lip got "all swole up from blowin' too hard."

"I just couldn't get my lip around it no more," he recalls. "So I stood around on the stage and started talkin'. Just kinda waiting for my lip to go down."

By the time his lip had gone down Herb was established as a comedian. His homespun yarns about life in Indiana had the ring of honesty to them—like those of Will Rogers—and before long he had moved up in the billing.

"I'd like to get back to some of my old routines," he says. "I been getting rusty just sitting up there giving money away.

"It's funny. Now, sometimes, when I go out on a guest shot or to give them my old act in a night club, well, the people don't expect me to be a comedian. They seem to be sitting there, waiting for me to start passing out the big green bills. It's kind of unsettling for a fellow.

"Say, when I was a performer down at the Paramount or the Palace before TV come along, I used to stand up in front of the audience and clobber them with jokes. And they knew I was there to rassel around with them for the laughs. But now I'm just the man with the money bags. It's a great show, but I wish I could play my harmonica a little more often.

"One thing about it, the people all recognize you when you're on TV. Once I stalled my car at a deserted grade crossing way out in the country somewhere, out in the middle of an old alfalfa field at midnight. There wasn't nobody within 50 miles of that place. Then, finally, I got out of the car and started sweatin' around with the engine. Well, pretty soon a feller come riding up on a mule. I never seen him before in my life.

" 'Hello, Herb,' he says.

"And then he just rode on until he was completely out of sight. Didn't look back once."

Herb stepped out of vaudeville and into TV as Arthur Godfrey's replacement in 1951 after scoring a hit in a Broadway review, "Inside USA." His run on Two for the Money began in 1953 (when an ailing Fred Allen had to turn down the bid). The show has shown remarkable staying power in the Saturday night battleline. It's audience this year numbers a loyal 20,000,000.

That's part of the trouble. Two for the Money is so successful as a giveaway that it has almost submerged Shriner as a personality. And that's why he'd kind of like to work his harmonica into the act.

"Of course, I'd still be in there passin' out money," says Herb. "I wouldn't want to give that up to play on a harmonica."—Frank De Blois

'Grand Ole Opry' Creates Some Square Dance Steps For TV GUIDE

The gay New Year's holiday is the time for dancing. To add a bit of fun to the festivities, ABC's Grand Ole Opry has devised a square dance just for TV GUIDE. Here Opry dancers Billy Harris and Lillian Fort show some of the highlights. Dancers who are tempted to try these fancy doin's for themselves must fill in with standard figures to link the special steps into an entire routine. The experts suggest "Sally Good'n," a traditional square dance tune, as the music to which you can swing your partners, as Opry folk are doing at left, while the show's famous Roy Acuff sings.

REVIEWS

Medical Horizons

With its Medical Horizons, ABC is making a laudable attempt to bring into the American living room a weekly report on the advances of medicine. Unfortunately, however, the program has not come off as the kind of stirring public service it obviously was planned to be.

The show invites the viewer to tag along after a kindly old host, Don Goddard, on his visits to various hospitals and clinics. A particular disease or medical problem is dealt with each week, as Goddard interviews doctors, laboratory technicians, patients and their families. To inject realism, the producers apparently have insisted that real doctors and real patients be used; and it is here, specifically, that Medical Horizons falls down. The important quality lacking, unfortunately, is showmanship.

Only on rare occasions has Goddard been able to conduct an interview with a doctor who knows something about talking on his feet. And if a man is going to talk to a considerable audience, it follows that he should have that knack. Even more awkward have been some of the sessions with patients and their families in recreating a dramatic moment they have lived through. Their efforts at acting tend to embarrass the viewer.

For all these faults of commission, however, it is readily apparent that Medical Horizons is struggling to perform a genuine service. Its sincerity of purpose cannot be questioned, nor can the basic facts which it presents. It is passing along valuable and even vital information to the viewing audience. If the producers are seeking a documentary sort of authority, and do not want to use professional actors, they should select their amateurs more carefully.

Dr. Spock

There is hardly a young American parent alive who has not at one time or another been exposed to a book called "Baby and Child Care," written by Dr. Benjamin Spock.

The Dr. Spock who discourses on an NBC program bearing his name, alas, is not the same Dr. Spock. The man is the same, to be sure, as is his subject; but he has made a fundamental error by surrounding himself with problem-ridden parents.

Dr. Spock himself is personable and speaks easily and well. Trouble is, he seldom gets a word in edgewise.

It is Dr. Spock in whom the viewer has his greatest interest, not other parents. Were he to appear alone and say, for example, "Let's discuss feeding problems at the age of two," every parent would know instantly what he meant. Furthermore, he could do it in minutes; but visiting parents sometimes take the entire program.—D.J.

Fish disrupt television service in western Pennsylvania. Must have belonged to the Ding Dong School.

These were gizzard shad and they swam into the intake pipe at the electric plant. There were so many shad that the whole plant had to shad down. It seems they could put the gizzard shad into their pipe, but they couldn't smoke it.

It was like that poem: "Little fishes in the brook, crowding in for just one look."

One expert said he knew there was something fishy about the power failure, and there was. The sound went off first, which left the people hard of herring. If you want to see TV at its worst, try watching an old kinescope through a gizzard shad.

The only shows you could see all night were Dean Pike, Dotty Mackerel and Name That Tuna.

Nobody knows much about the habits of the gizzard shad, except that they don't like TV.

By Plane From Havana

'Wide Wide World' Is Airborne To Import A Cuban Fiesta

Television has taken a giant step toward transoceanic telecasts with NBC's successful pickup of a Cuban fiesta from Havana as part of its Wide Wide World program. But don't expect to receive programs from Paris, London or way stations tomorrow. Tremendous costs and equally tremendous technical problems shroud the starting date of regular programs in a haze of speculation. The Havana pickup was accomplished by beaming a signal to an equipment-packed C-47 flying a tight figure-eight pattern 170 miles from Cuba and 60 miles from Miami, at an altitude of 11,000 feet. The signal was relayed by the plane to antenna atop Miami Beach's tallest building, the 16-story Fontainebleau Hotel, from which it was sent to rest of U.S.

MIAMI

Thousands of American families saw the gay Cuban fiesta (opposite page) in the first successful transoceanic telecast. Mobile equipment, mounted in a truck (below), recorded the island scenes and sent them by cable up the side of a tall building to the transmitter (left). Above is the interior of the C-47, while in flight, showing some of the equipment used to relay the program to transmitters in Miami Beach.

A 110-YEAR-OLD HERO IS STILL POPPING UP ON TV

Since Alexandre Dumas wrote "The Count of Monte Cristo" in 1845, writers have hatched stories about the count, his sword, son and wife—to name only a few. Not covered to date: "The Rocket Ship of Monte Cristo." But, with George Dolenz now on TV in new adventures, this, too, could come to pass.
